Latens Systems Ltd Receives Queen's Award for Enterprise in International Trade

Belfast, UK, April 21, 2010 – Latens Systems Ltd, a world leader in providing security software to Pay TV operators, has today been awarded the prestigious Queen's Award for Enterprise in the category of International Trade, the UK's top award for business performance. Latens have won the award for the first time for doubling its exports over three years with all sales being exports.

Latens commenced trading in 2002 and since then has led the way in Next Generation software Conditional Access (CAS) and Middleware (ECO) for Cable, IPTV, DTT, DTH and Mobile. Latens has displayed a well-developed marketing strategy based on quality products, innovation, good value and customer focus. Sales are made to global operators with re-sell agreements.

"We are thrilled that Latens has received the Queen's Award for the first time," said Jeremy Thorp, founder and CEO at Latens. "We have an excellent team of people working at Latens, all of whom have contributed to our growth. We all take pride in being recognised for our business success by such a prestigious award."

The Queen's Awards for Enterprise are the UK's most prestigious awards for business performance and recognise and reward outstanding achievement by UK companies. The International Trade category recognises companies that have demonstrated significant growth in overseas earnings.
